Raffle Agreement

Thank you for your interest in participating in a Brown County United Way raffle. It is important to note that a raffle is a game of chance, purchasing a ticket (or tickets) does not guarantee a return. The cost of raffle tickets is not tax deductible. Please read the guidelines below set forth by the Office of Charitable Gaming, sign and return to the Brown County United Way.

When a raffle is held, all Brown County United Way volunteers must agree to the following:

- All raffle events are sponsored by the Brown County United Way—exclusive holder of the raffle license.
- Brown County United Way has complete oversight of the raffle.
- All supporting documentation is the property of and retained by the Brown County United Way.
- All raffle tickets must conform to Brown County United Way and State of Wisconsin standards (please see attached “Legal Requirements for Raffles in Wisconsin”).
- Raffle tickets and sales must not be tied to pledge amounts.
- Raffle license is not transferable—the license holder must conduct the raffle.
- Companies may donate prizes to the Brown County United Way raffle; however, no corporate sponsor names or logos may appear on the ticket.
- Companies that have the capability to print raffle tickets for use in a Brown County United raffle may do so.

The following information must be provided to the Brown County United Way one calendar week following the prize drawing:

- Total dollars raised from raffle ticket sales
- Total expenses subtracted (if applicable)
- Net total dollars raised from raffle
- A list of all prize winners’ names, addresses, prizes won and the value of each prize for all prizes that are valued at $100 or more
